Biography

Simian Mobile Disco are an English electronic music duo and production team, formed in 2003 by James Ford and Jas Shaw of the band Simian. [1)] Discogs describes the duo as founded in 2005 in London. [2)] MusicBrainz lists the group as based in the United Kingdom, beginning in London and active since 2005. [3)] The group is tagged with electro, electro house, tech house and techno. [4)]

Musically, the duo is known for its analogue production, and Ford is also known for his production work. [5)] Resident Advisor reports that Ford and Shaw abandoned every tool they previously used to make music, and that for their new record, Whorl, they built an entirely new electronic system and recorded everything live from scratch. [6)] According to Resident Advisor, their last album, Unpatterns, reflects their penchant for disruption and reinvention. [7)] MusicBrainz lists Unpatterns as a 2012 album on Wichita. [8)]

MusicBrainz lists several releases from 2010 to 2012. These include the album Is Fixed (2010) on Defend Music, the album Delicacies (2010), the EP Extra Temporary (2010) on Wichita, and the single Casu Marzu (2010) on Delicacies. [9)] Further entries include the single Gizzard (2011) on Delicacies, the EP A Form of Change (2012), the EP Seraphim (2012) on Wichita, and the album Mixmag Presents: Patterns and Cycles (2012) on Mixmag. [10)] MusicBrainz also lists two BBC Radio 1 Essential Mix broadcasts: one from the Rockness Festival on 18 June 2011, and Sonar at Night on 16 June 2012. [11)]

Discogs lists releases including Defender, Hey Sister, Live At The Barbican and Re-Murmurations, all from 2018 on Wichita, as well as Anthology: 10 Years Of SMD (2017) and Remember In Reverse (2016, Delicacies). [12)] SoundCloud shows 59753 followers and 439 tracks. [13)]
